I'm the kind of guy that appreciates the little things in life and does his best to see that they are taken care of between good friends as well as in romantic relationships. I am active when I get the chance, but that can be limited by my (sometimes demanding) work as a graduate student. I do my best to find a good balance between work, study, and pleasure -- and am doing my best to hone my skills on the ballroom floor, from the Waltz to Swing and Argentine Tango (four years and running). While I may fit the profile for a geek, I still know how to enjoy a night on the town. I've been described by my friends as the stereotypical 'nice guy' who is finishing last; unafraid of comittment but unable to find the right lady. I do my best to make a romantic interest feel special -- and laugh when I can get the chance! I can be shy at first, but am the type of guy that can warm up quickly to a friendly demeanor. I'm looking for someone who shares similar interests -- but as the saying goes, 'opposites attract.' Someone who has a good sense of humor, enjoys regular dancing (or is willing to learn), or scuba diving is off to a good start!

for fun:
I've been working on my ballroom dance skills for the past four years and counting. I can be found scuba diving from Lake Superior to the Caymans when the chance permits. When not being terribly active I can be found reading or enjoying a nice day!

my job:
I'm a graduate student studying plasma physics in relation to fusion energy science. Essentially, my lab works on cooking up and containing plasmas similar to (or hotter than) the core of the Sun!

my education:
I received a BA in Physics, Mathematics, and Computer Science from St. Olaf College in Northfield, MN in 2004, and will be in Madison for the next N years working towards a Ph.D in Nuclear Engineering and Engineering Physics at UW-Madison.

favorite things:
Being able to step back from a hectic lifestyle and enjoy some of the simpler things in life, such as making a good meal or enjoying a good book in front

Hair: Light brown Eyes: Blue
Best Feature: Eyes
Body art: No answer

of a warm fire on a cold winter day. I also like making the most of good swing music!

last read:

J.D. Jackson's chapter on relativistic electrodynamics. (Blech!) When I'm not stuck reading for classes, I find myself working on back issues of Scientific American or a slew of novels by Robert Heinlein.
